Celebrating National Day for Truth & Reconciliation

September 30 is the National Day for Truth and Reconciliation and a time for us to reflect on the history and traumatic legacy of residential schools in Canada, including seven schools that were located on Vancouver Island. Public commemoration of the painful history and ongoing impacts of residential schools is a vital component of the reconciliation process and the CVRD and other local governments will be closing their facilities to support the community in acknowledging this day together. Whether it be through attending a local event, wearing orange, accessing learning resources or joining the conversation with family and friends about how to be an ally. We can all commit to doing our part to move forward in a good way, acknowledging residential school survivors, and the lives of those children who did not come home.
